RECONSTRUCTION-ITS PERILS-ITS TRUE BASES. We are known to be utterly averse to any harshness in the treatment of the late Rebels. We took ground against all manner of vengeful proceedings against them when the popular clamor for condign punishment was overwhelming. Journals that now stand for elemency, magnanimity, forgiveness, then headed the hunt, and won subscribers from us by saying what they are now doing their best to unsay. They are welcome to all they have made by their dexterity, and we heartily rejoice in the change of popular sentiment, which is so faithfully reflected in their columns. But when we are asked to favor a plan of "reconstruction" which restores the revolted States to an equality in all things with the loyal, and tape and less needless slaughter.

Eleren of our States (not including the dis Holt, states that the latter did all in his power to serve puted) were recently in rebellion against the Union, with the full assent and cooperation of

One of the greatest problems of our civilization is how to make woman independent and self-sustaining. This is a question that we shall have to meet sooner or later; for no civilization is perfect until the concentration is perfect until the concentration of woman is marriage. Her sphere is home.
